United Nations Supreme Commander Presumed To Have Come to Korea in Order to Be in Close Contact With His Five Delegates During History-Making Conference Opening Tomorrow Morning.

By Howard Handleman
(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)
SEOUL, July 9 — (INS) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and his top armistice negotiator, Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, flew late today to an advance base, 15 miles from Kaesong where formal cease-fire talks begin tomorrow in an effort to end the Korean war.

The United Nations supreme commander was presumed to have come to Korea in order to be in close contact with his five delegates during the history-making conference opening at 10 Tuesday morning (8 p. m. Monday EDT).

Ridgway and Joy, who commands the U. S. and UN Far East naval forces, landed by plane from Tokyo at the Seoul city airport, an island in the middle of the Han river, Monday afternoon.

They stepped into a waiting giant H-19 helicopter which flew them 19 miles southwest to Munsan where an Allied "armistice base" has been set up 15 miles southeast of ancient Kaesong.

The 56-year-old Joy, an "old China hand" who has had dealings with the Chinese over the past 28 years, voiced the hope the momentous truce talks will be concluded Wednesday.

But he would not say when he expects a cease-fire pact to be signed, if it is successfully negotiated, nor when the actual fighting would end if an armistice is signed.

"My personal hope," he told newsmen at the Seoul city airport, "is that the (armistice) meeting will be over the day after tomorrow."

Joy said Gen. Ridgway has an "open mind" on whether he, the leader of all UN armed forces in the Korean struggle, will go to

THE WAR

TOKYO — The air war blazed anew in Korea despite cease fire talks and Allied jet fighters routed Communist jets in a dogfight for the third straight day. At least one Russian-type MIG-15 jet was shot down when 26 American saboteurs, escorting B29s on a bombing raid, tangled with eight enemy planes. This ran enemy losses in three days of fighting to eight—four destroyed and four damaged. The tempo of ground fighting unexplainably speeded up Sunday and several sharp local engagements flared on the central and eastern fronts. These battles ended a full of almost a week in ground action.

45 DIVORCEES PLAN TO WED AGAIN

Will Take Second Chance In the Field of Matrimony

APPLY FOR LICENSES

DOYLESTOWN, July 9—June became not only the "month of brides," but the month of grooms more youthful than their wives. Thirty-three women applied in Bucks County to take the oath of matrimony with men ranging from one to 18 years their junior and 18 others accepted grooms of the same age as themselves, the former apparently following the advice of psychologists that women take younger husbands.

As far as quantity went, in spite of the apparent boom in the sale of marriage licenses this year, there were ten fewer applicants than last June.

As usual there was also a superabundance of underagers, with 22 men and 60 women bringing their parents in tow to the local license bureau. There were four brides of 16, eight were 17, 12 were 18, 17 were 19, and 19 were 20 years of age. Four married husbands nine years older, one took a groom ten years older and three married spouses 12 years their senior. Of the 22 underage grooms, four were 17, four were 18, eight were 19, and six were 20 years of age.

In the "of full age" group, just about half were born in the 20's.

MORE TROUBLE FOR BRITAIN

Great Britain is on the hook, and can't get off. She can wriggle, but can't escape. Socialism is doing its dirty work. The only political issues remaining are fast-socialism and slow-socialism. The Laborites are for fast-socialism, even to the extent of drifting towards Communism. The Churchill conservatives are for slow-socialism, but not for a return to free economy and self-government.

A new chapter is unfolding with our English cousins. A report within the past few days by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell, marks the end of one epoch and the beginning of a new one.

The old one is the attempted post-war recovery. What the new will be remains to be seen — something "planned," something drastic, something more completely socialistic, almost certainly.

What the Gaitskell report makes clear beyond serious question is that the Labor Party's post-war program is dead. It has failed. Moreover, the report makes entirely obvious whose hand it was that destroyed the valiant effort which the British people made to revive their economy with their export program — the "export-or-die" campaign.

The man who killed the British recovery program was President Truman.

Of course, he didn't do it on purpose. He "didn't know it was loaded" when he pulled the trigger. But he is to blame, just the same.

Considering how many billions of dollars of American wealth have been poured into British economy trying to keep it going—first in lend-lease, then in the so-called "loan," and then in the Marshall Plan and accompanying give-aways, it seems strange that the force which destroyed all possible benefits of this spending should come from the United States.

But that's how it was. The place where President Truman knocked the DiSalle told the midwestern regional conference of the Council of State Governments, that as a result of "the legislative lapse that now exists, we are forced to stand still." He added that "failure to give us an effective stabilization act certainly would start us off again on a road to higher prices and new pressures on local governments as well as business and consumers."

DISPOSES OF HIS ESTATE WITH BUT SINGLE SENTENCE

Will of Lewis M. Pidcock is One of The Briefest Ever Filed

WIFE IS BENEFICIARY

Grandview Hospital is Bequeathed $500 by Wm. L. Bergey

DOYLESTOWN, July 9 — Lewis M. Pidcock, late of Newtown, disposed of his estate in one sentence—one of the briefest wills ever filed. Mr. Pidcock's wife, Clara B. Pidcock, was named executrix and sole beneficiary. The will was written with a lead pencil on a sheet of tablet paper, and dated Feb. 10, 1946. Mr. Pidcock, who died May 28th, left a personal estate of $300.

Lay Cornerstone of New Lutheran Church Building

DOYLESTOWN, July 9—Over 350 persons attended the cornerstone-laying ceremonies for the new educational building of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, yesterday.

In addition, the pastor, the Rev. Bernard Repass, celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the ministry.

Rev. Dr. Emil E. Fischer, president of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, preached the morning sermon and officiated at the cornerstone rites for the $100,000 building, the first unit of a completely new church building program.

Ground for the new site recently was purchased on N. Main street at the intersection of North street, across from the present edifice. Following the morning service, the congregation and clergy marched in a procession to the new site.

In his message, Dr. Fischer spoke on the ministry and the influence ministers have on their congregations, taken from the 19th chapter of Romans. As a congregation grows, Dr. Fischer said, the minister can see the comfort of the Gospel and the benefits of ministry to all age groups, the young, middle-aged, and older groups.

Mr. Repass, ordained in St. Michael's Lutheran Church, Allentown, in 1901, has served nearly 31 years as pastor of the Doylestown church.

The new building, of Colonial architecture with sandstone facing, will contain a large assembly hall, 11 class rooms, an office and a kitchen. It is expected to be dedicated and ready for use early next year.

READY FOR RUSSIA

Those who hold to the belief that Russia will eventually start a war against the free nations of the world must wonder, at times, when the decision will be made and just how hostilities will get under way.

It has been a common theory that Russian planes might launch the offensive with bomb attacks upon the principal cities to terrorize the American people and lessen their will to fight. In view of recent official pronouncements on the subject there is small likelihood that such attacks need to be feared as matters now stand.

General Emmett O'Donnell of the Air Force recently told members of the Senate the strategic air command was ready to hit back instantly if this country is attacked. Other high military leaders have said the same thing and it no longer is a military secret that the nation is ready to meet any such aggression by Russia.

General O'Donnell has declared that long-range bombers have been streamlined and would be on their way to the interior of Russia in a matter of hours.

Russia was willing to permit the Chinese communists to become expendable, but has no stomach for direct attack upon its own country. U. S. atomic superiority, together with the long-range bombers to deliver their loads to any part of that country, are the factors of safety so far as war, present or future, is concerned. This country is ready for any such emergency.

UP TO THE COMMUNISTS

The genuineness of communist overtures for an end to the fighting in Korea is being put to as thoroughgoing a test today as anyone could ask.

If these are difficult and anxious hours for Americans, they must be infinitely more difficult for the soldiers in the field. For the guns are still firing and lives are still being lost in battle while talk of an armistice fills the air. As a usual thing, in war, negotiations for a truce are conducted in the deepest secrecy until terms are arranged. This time every soldier knows what is going on and it must test his valor and morale to the utmost to keep on fighting when he knows another 24 hours may bring a halt in the conflict.

The delay so far means little; communist regimes are slow to move in matters of this kind. And we must also keep in mind that there is no guarantee that the fighting will end. Once negotiations are actually under way the Reds may come up with terms for a cease fire which are utterly unacceptable to the United States.

But all the world now can see that America and her Allies have done their part to bring this bloody conflict to an end. It is up to the communists now to say whether it shall continue.

That cliché, "the foreseeable future," is most often heard in Washington, where it isn't foreseen.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Feb. 12, 1903. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

LANGHORNE — At the meeting of Sorosis on the fifth of February, Russian Literature was the theme of study. The merits of the well known writers, Pushkin, Count Tolstol and Sienkiewicz were freely discussed, Miss Lillie S. Allen giving a very good account of the life of Pushkin, the greatest national poet. Miss Laura Hudson Candy read in part the humorous sketch by Banks "Anne's Interview with Sienkiewicz". An animated discussion "Should the Press be Totally Free?" was opened by Miss Susan W. Gillam, many of the members joining in the argument. A solo by Mrs. William B. Pryor furnished the musical feature of the afternoon. Next meeting, February 19th, will be nomination day.

HULMEVILLE — Mrs. Bertice Douglas has just completed a bed quilt which has 10,080 pieces in it.

EMILJE — The Emilje post office has been removed to the store property of Frank Wright with Joseph L. Lovett as postmaster.

TULLYTOWN — Another of our young men has secured a position with the trolley company. M. White, of Oxford avenue, is wearing a conductor's cap.

Notice is published in the advertising columns of today's Gazette of the intended application for a charter for the "Peoples' Gas Light and Fuel Company", a corporation which proposes to furnish Bristol and nearby towns with gas for lighting, heating and fuel purposes. The incorporators are Anthony R. Kuser, John L. Kuser, Rudolph Kuser, Thomas Scott, and Franklin Gikson. The promoters of the company are men of large capital, and the same interests that were identified in the purchase of the Bristol Electric Light Company are in the new venture.

Morris Carter, of 575 Swain street, Bristol, was badly injured while at work on Friday night at Gray's Ferry while making up a train on the Pennsylvania Railroad. A collision occurred and Carter sustained severe injuries about the head and hips. He was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia. Carter has been in the employ of the railroad for 15 years.

The steamboat "Quaker City" of the Wilmington Steamboat Company's fleet left Philadelphia last week for Miami, Fla., under charter to the Peninsula and Occidental Steamship Company. The "Quaker City" was in command of Captain Peter Bloomsburg and a crew from the local company. On her arrival at Miami she will run for three months between that place and Key West, carrying passengers and light freight. While in southern waters the steamer will be in charge of Captain William Hedrick. The "Quaker City" will remain in the south until the spring, when she will resume the trips on the Delaware river between Philadelphia and Trenton.

The Delaware River Navigation Company has sold the "Diamond State" steamboat; and the "Twilight", which has been run to Trenton, may replace the swift boat.

Should the "Twilight" be taken from the Trenton service the company will probably replace her with a new boat.

The steamer "Diamond State" has been purchased from the Delaware River Navigation Company by August Belmont, of New York, as a tender for his yacht "Constitution", which is again to enter the preliminary trials to select a vessel to defend the America's cup next fall in the international regatta.

Miss Caroline S. Kinsey, of Bristol, aged 71 years, died at her home on Radcliffe street on Monday of valvular disease of the heart. Miss Kinsey was born in Bristol and was a daughter of the late William Kinsey. The deceased was the last of her immediate family. The late Mr. Kinsey was also a native of Bristol, and Mrs. Kinsey was born on Burlington Island. Miss Kinsey's funeral will take place today, interment at the Bristol Cemetery.

By the terms of her will the Bristol Methodist Church will receive a large bequest as practically the entire estate is left to the church. The estate is valued at about $60,000. The sum of $5,000 is left to a family relative, $3,000 is given to an old ladies' home, and a hospital bed is to be endowed. The rest of the estate is left to the church.

The Bristol Methodist Church is one of the handsomest structures of its kind. It was built a number of years ago at a cost of over $30,000. A mortgage of $13,000 upon the property now exists. Miss Kinsey's bequest will enable the church to clear all indebtedness and provide good sources of revenue as the estate consists of valuable stocks and bonds.

The older woman must take good care of her complexion. Creams are important. The right powder and make-up make a big difference, too.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman who is "getting along" looks in a mirror, realizes that little crinkles are appearing on her sacred complexion she longs for a magic smoothing iron that will erase them. She sees other middle-aged women with unrumpled skins and wonders why fate has picked on her. Maybe it hasn't. Maybe she lacked foresight, or indulged in emotional binges, or hasn't taken care of her health.

Women in their late twenties and thirties can avoid turkey tracks and creases across the forehead by taking exceptionally good care of their skins. We take it for granted that they will wash their faces carefully, using the blandest soap they can find, that they will rinse the suds away and dry with gentle pats of a soft towel. We aren't so sure that they will attend to lubricating with a nourishing emollient.

Creams have been of untold benefit to the sisters. The use of them protects the flesh from strong rays of the sun, the friction necessary for their application enlivens the blood streams upon which the cells and tissues live. Tonic lotions can be had to help along the good work.

Frown lines are self-inflicted, often mark a woman as one who is easily irritated. Should it happen that even hairline marks are appearing between your eyebrows apply a heavy cream and treat them to a rotary movement. Then, place the thumb at lower line, first finger above it; hold the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb.

It sometimes happens that the formation of the jaw is such that lines form from nostrils to lip ends. Those also respond to a round-and-round movement of the fingertip. Another means of treatment is to pick up the line at the lower terminal, go skipping upward with little pinches to lift the flesh out of the rut.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, July 9 — "Men who have made the oil business a life work and who have amassed fortunes, some running into the millions, have put the stamp of approval upon the properties and success of the Morgan Oil and Refining Company by investing their money and becoming actively identified with the management of this company."

On April 1, 1917, the above paragraph appeared in a large advertisement of the Kansas City Star. President Truman was one-third owner and treasurer of the oil company.

It is impossible to find any Morgan Oil and Refining Company financial records now, if any ever existed, so I can't tell you accurately how many suckers paid form $5 to $25 for the oil stock. The President sold some of the shares to friends he met on the street. When the company evaporated less than a year later, and the President was asked by stockholders about getting a little cash back out of the concern that had tantalized oil millionaires, he replied by stating he had lost money, too.

That was not the case according to his long-time buddy and president of the oil company, D. H. Morgan, of Eureka, Kans. The President made a profit, according to Morgan, but for the life of me I can't figure out how he earned it. There is no evidence that he put any money into the company—only notes, countersigned by his mother. Notes wouldn't buy oil derricks or large newspaper ads, or pay for printing stock certificates.

The truth is that the President got a pocketful of stock certificates for serving as treasurer of the company, along with a commission to sell shares to his acquaintances. The notes were a gimmick. The President bought paper with paper and, as far as I can find out, didn't put in a cent of cash. In return he got paid, but again there are no records around, only the word of President Morgan of the Morgan Oil and Refining Company.

"Harry made a good profit," Morgan assures me.

In the Kansas City Star Advertisement the Truman-Morgan Oil Empire—so the promoters said—claimed leases on 20,000 acres of land in Kansas; a refining plant at Rollin, Kans.; ownership of 1,500 acres in Oklahoma, plus two drilling rigs, near a 10,000-barrel-a-day "gusher," and 10,000 Texas acres.

As it turned out, it was mostly gas. Read this, from the same advertisement:

"In the event this country is unfortunately brought to war, the absolute necessity of gasoline and other by-products of crude petroleum are bound to come to such an urgent demand that the price will soar beyond all expectation and an investment in the shares of any oil company that has production and large holdings of proven properties such as are held and owned by the Morgan Oil and Refining Company, is beyond question an investment of rare opportunity."

It was shortly after war broke out that the Morgan Oil and Refining Company folded up. The partners even quit selling stock. By 1918 Mr. Truman and Morgan sold out to J. S. Mullen, of Ardmore, Okla.

"There was a war on," Morgan explained. "Harry was in the Army." Morgan says the President still writes him letters every few weeks and sends him fancy, autographed beach shirts from Key West when he is vacationing there. He's likely to be writing him often in the next few days, since this is going to refresh a lot of memories.

If Truman and Morgan sold the 60,000 shares of stock at $5 a share, somebody had a cache of $300,000. If they sold all of it, minus the 1,000 shares the three founders grabbed at $1.00 each, for $25 a share, somebody pocketed $1,425,000. There are no records anywhere on how many shares were sold. From the way the boys went at it I figure conservatively that they lifted $200,000 out of midwestern pockets.

Mullen, as I noted here a few days ago, told me he bought out the Morgan Oil and Refining Company in late 1917. He says he got a lease on 2,500 acres of sagebrush in Oklahoma for his money, nothing else. There ain't a drop of oil underneath it, as far as I've been able to learn.

Morgan is hazy about what happened to the oil rigs, the Texas leases, the 1,500 acres near the gusher that was producing 10,000 barrels of oil daily within spitting distance. He is speechless about what happened to the refinery at Rollin, Kans. I was, almost, when I couldn't even find Rollin, let alone a refinery. But more about that Monday.

More Trouble for Britain

British recovery program in the head was a year ago when he stalled on imposing inflation controls.

It was as simple as that. The Korean War, as everyone agreed at the time, would give inflation the greatest impetus yet, unless controls were invoked. But President Truman waited for more than six months to impose the price-and-wage freezes, put the controls on "at the top," and even then allowed so many "exceptions" that inflation is still on the loose.

Soaring prices have wiped out all earnings from the British export program, for the second quarter of this year.

Of course, there is a very small profit—$54,000,000 compared with $360,000,000 and $398,000,000 respectively for the last two quarters—which shows up on the books; but this is less than the amount of the United States financial aid for the quarter, which was $55,000,000.

In other words, far from paying a profit, or even meeting its current obligations, the British export program could not even keep up with the gifts from Uncle Sam!

Discouraging as the picture is when measured by the profits which were expected to put Great Britain back on her feet, the outlook is even more gloomy when measured by the "trade gap"—that is, the difference between Britain's heavy foreign purchases, and the smaller value of her exports.

In the first five months of this year, the gap stood at $1,131,000,000, compared with only $400,000,000 for the same period last year.

Here is the vital factor—whether Britain's exports can pay for her imports. Thanks to Truman inflation, Britain is rapidly losing ground instead of gaining it.

Under the circumstances, the one optimistic note to be found in the report, which is a boast that production is higher than had been expected, is actually one of the most discouraging factors in the entire situation.

With production running ahead of the program, instead of behind it, ground is still being lost rapidly.

High production, on those terms, is merely hastening the evil day.

Whether or not Great Britain has ever been on the track to recovery since she let the socialists into power, she certainly is off the track now!

If Children Trade Belongings

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.B.

"IS it normal for a boy in early school grades to trade his belongings? What can be done to keep him from disposing of things which his parents have bought for him—not too valuable perhaps—but the things a boy of that age likes to possess?" So a mother writes.

I must have been about ten years old when one day in school Charley Atkinson said to me, "Whole blade or no trade," as he held his large penknife toward me with blades closed so I could see only part of the blades of his knife nearest the hinges. I had never seen his knife before but had a pretty good one of my own, which he had seen. I agreed to a trade. Then I discovered that the knife I got in this trade had only one whole blade. I protested but Charley insisted that a trade is a trade.

I decided to take up the matter with my father, naively supposing he would get Charley to trade back as my father and Charley's were close friends. But my father said I would have to stick to the bargain. Then he warned me in ways I clearly understood that I should never sell or trade my belongings.

Caused Many Quarrels

After we had children of our own I learned that this matter of trading single objects, bartering or selling their own possessions was prevalent among young children, and caused many quarrels between children, even among parents. So we vigilantly proceeded to prevent it among our own children. It was not so difficult a problem to handle with these children as they usually did not have more things than most of their playmates had. It was still easier for my parents as we children were decidedly limited in the possessions we might have traded or sold. Obviously, children with many more material things given them by their parents than most of their playmates, are the more ready to trade, sell or give away their things. Yet all young children tend to want later to have back the possessions they have so disposed of.

If your child, say he is from two to five, brings home a toy he says another child has given him, do not question his report. Persuade him to go with you and return the toy to the owner, explaining that the former owner might change his mind and want it back. Do this after winning agreement to the plan from the former owner's parents. I at the age of four or even six or older, your child has traded or bought an article from a playmate, go first to confer with his parents alone to ascertain whether these other parents would want their child's property restored to him or would see that their own child should stick to his bargain. Then make clear to your child he must not trade, sell, receive as a gift or give away any of his belongings without approval of the parents of both children involved.

Property Ownership
Young children don't have sufficient experience to be allowed to make such exchanges of property ownership.

As for your own child, insist that he cannot require return of possessions he has bartered, sold or given away. Hold him to his side of the bargain, even if in some extreme instances you might choose to buy him a similar or equivalent object. Aim to limit your child's exchange of property to the usual commercial avenues.

of his whereabouts, as far as authorities are concerned.

On Friday afternoon, sometime before 4:30, a child saw the body of Pressley floating in the river near here. The body was removed to the funeral home of J. Maurice Tomlinson.

Identity was established through papers in the man's pockets, he being traced through his employer in South Carolina to his family in the south. It was then learned of the proposed visit in Philadelphia.

According to the death certificate death was due to drowning. It is stated there are no marks on the man's body which would indicate foul play otherwise.

Feminine Fragrance for You

Perfume for a lovelier You. This floral scent comes with its own atomizer, plus a gold-plated bottle cap to use when you travel.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MAKE your daily bath a relaxing pleasure instead of a duty. Use a fragrant bath softener to fill the room with that so-good-to-smell scent. It will make you feel luxurious and lovely.

Whether you use bath salts, bubbles or oil, you will get the best results if you place them in the dry tub directly under the faucet and turn on the hot water full force. Add cool water until you have a tepid temperature; this is the best method if you would have a ten-minute rest and soaking. You can heat up the water a little when you start scouring your svelte shape with a well-soaped brush.

Utterly Feminine

After the bath, give yourself a friction with eau de cologne or a spicy toilet water. It will rub away dead skin scales to which the deposits of perspiration may cling like all get-out. You will have a definite sense of being utterly feminine. Nothing like a flattered odor to add to charm and distinction.

Put all your precious scents on your dressing table or in the bathroom cabinet so they will remind you to use them every day. Don't just save them for dress-up, gala occasions. Used with an atomizer, they will last a long time. Keep them out of sunlight which will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate.

No Nicer Gift

When somebody makes you a gift of a delightful perfume—and what nicer gift can there be—do you have trouble loosening the glass stopper? Don't ask the strong-armed man of the house to remove it. Just tap the underside of the stopper with a glass article, such as another bottle. At the same time, turn the perfume bottle slowly in your hand so that the stopper will be tapped evenly all around. Lo! out it will come, easy as pie!

Don't overlook sachets. They are wonderful buys and come in the cutest of all possible forms. Tuck them among your undies, place them in handkerchief and glove boxes. Put little ones in coat pockets. Your friends and acquaintances will be subtly conscious of the intangible, and delightful fragrance.

The Admiral remarked also that the Allied delegation which includes one South Korean major general as well as four Americans, will eat American instead of Chinese or Korean food.

Observers felt this might depend on whether the Reds wish to send their top commanders, China's Gen. Peng Teh-Huai and North Korea's Kim Il Sung, to Kaesong.

Ridgway was smiling and looked confident as he stepped off the plane at the airport. But he declined to talk.

Joy, however, spoke to correspondents freely, though he did not comment at length on the impending Kaesong conference which may bring to a close the bloody Korean conflict, now in its 55th week.

He said he and his four colleagues on the UN delegation will go to Kaesong from Munsan daily by helicopter or jeep, depending on the weather.

Kaesong, a South Korean city two miles below Parallel 38.

Joy declared there will be no armed Americans at the full-dress Kaesong conference starting Tuesday.

"I don't see any occasion for it," he said.

The Admiral described the base from which he and his party will go to and come from Kaesong daily as being "as close to Kaesong as possible."

Asked whether he liked his assignment, he counter-queried dryly:

"Would you like it?"

Then he added:

"I am looking forward to a very interesting time."

When Ridgway stepped off the C-54 that flew him from Tokyo to Seoul, the supreme commander was met by Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the U. S. Eighth Army and of all UN ground forces in Korea. They exchanged warm greetings and conferred briefly on what Ridgway termed "Eighth Army matters."

Joy refused to enter into the question of whether Kaesong is held by the Chinese and North Korean Communists or lies in a no man's land.

"I consider it the place where we are going to meet," he said in answer to reporters' questions.

Col. A. J. Kinney of the U. S. Air Force, who headed a three-man delegation at a preparatory meeting with the Reds in Kaesong Sunday, told newsmen Sunday night that the city is "definitely" held by the enemy.

When Ridgway and Joy arrived in the big "copter" at the Munsan "armistice base"—a widely spread "tent city"—they were greeted by an honor guard consisting of a battalion from the U. S. Army's 27th Regiment.

An informed source said Ridgway will stay at the Munsan advanced headquarters throughout the full-dress armistice conference. Joy and his fellow-delegates will return to Munsan from Kaesong nightly.

The Admiral told newsmen he will report each night to the Allied supreme commander before telling anyone else of the day's developments during the talks with the four-man Chinese and North Korean delegation.

Accordingly, no communications are expected to be issued until after Joy reports to Ridgway each night. Allied radio equipment already has been set up at Kaesong, by arrangements with the Reds. This will enable the UN negotiators to speak directly with Ridgway at Munsan as problems come up around the conference table.

If Ridgway had remained at his Tokyo headquarters, such communications would have to be relayed through Seoul, frequently causing lengthy delays.

Ridgway's presence so near the scene of the peace talks was expected to speed the negotiations because no time will be unnecessarily lost in the transmitting of messages and instructions between the UN military chief and his delegation.

How close to Kaesong the top Chinese and North Korean commanders were was not known.

All arrangements for Tuesday's opening of the formal conference were completed Sunday at a four-hour meeting in Kaesong between three Allied liaison officers, including one South Korean, and the same number of enemy officers.

The Admiral remarked also that the Allied delegation which includes one South Korean major general as well as four Americans, will eat American instead of Chinese or Korean food.

SLIDING THROUGH

LAWRENCE, Mass. — (INS) — A whispering campaign at the University of Kansas has ended. Sophomore minds could not see how a bell, 7 ft., 2 in., in diameter, could be gotten through a 6 ft., 6 in., doorway. However, the "Olin Temple" bell, weighing nearly seven tons, proved to be a "Mr. Five-by-Five" and was not so high as it was broad. So, workmen put the bell on its side on a cradle and slid it through the doorway in the new World War II memorial campanile.

SUNDAY DINNER

Suggestions

HOT, nourishing soup... crisply cool vegetable salad... buttered rolls... rhubarb pie.

That's the hot-weather dinner suggested this week by the A & P

Service for Homemakers. To begin with, here is the way to make clam blaque:

Combine one can of tomato soup, one can of pea soup, one can of cream of mushroom soup, two and one-half cups of milk and one 10-ounce can of minced clams. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, simmer for about five minutes and serve at once.

On each salad plate, place potato salad and a vegetable-stuffed red tomato. Garnish with cucumber rings and radish slices.

For one nine-inch rhubarb pie, mix together three tablespoons of flour, one overflowing cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of salt and four cups of diced rhubarb. Add the grated rind of one orange and one fourth cup of orange juice. Turn into a pastry-lined, nine-inch pan, dot with butter or margarine. Cover with strips of pastry, la se fashion.

Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees) for 20 minutes. Reduce to a moderate temperature (350 degrees) and bake about 20 minutes longer.

BENSALEM SCORES 5 TO 1 WIN OVER JUNIOR LEGION

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 9.—Bensalem Sporting Club registered a 5-1 win over the Langhorne Junior Legion yesterday in a Bristol Youth League game on Hensell's field.

"Bill" Condit did the hill chores for the winners, allowing Coach "Jim" Egli's team but five scattered hits. He struck-out-nine. A single by Kaufman and Perkins' triple accounted for the only Langhorne run in the first inning.

Bensalem had six hits off Nick Grudza. Two of these, bunched with an error, fielder's choice, and walk enabled the ultimate winners to count three runs in the fourth. In the fifth, two walks and a pair of hits was good for another tally but Jenks failed to deliver with the bags loaded.

The Voltz-Texaco and Southampton teams will battle for the first half championship of the Tri-County League this evening on the neutral Newtown field. Game will begin at six o'clock.

Voltz-Texaco, Hilltop, and Southampton finished in a triple deadlock for first place. Voltz actually won the championship but had a victory taken away from it for using a ball not specified in the league rules. The Bristol team then went on to beat Hilltop in one of the playoff games. "Bill" McGerr or Paul Cervellero will do the pitching for the gasmen with Frank Barbetta behind the plate.

TERCHON POST LEADS LEAGUE

The Chester W. Terchon Post, of Veterans of Foreign Wars, continues to lead the Bristol Clubmen's Association softball league but only by a small margin as the Clinton J. Lewis Lodge is right on their heels. In fact, it was the Lewis Lodge that handed the Vets their first loss last week as they defeated them by the score of 9 to 4. The rest of the teams are very much in contention for the league lead and certainly the playoff positions involving the first four teams are still not definitely set. Even the cellar team, the No. 1 Firemen, which hasn't won a game yet has a chance for a playoff spot. All teams will swing into action this week as the league hits the mid-point for this season. The Clubmen's Association sports committee announces plans for a donkey softball game which will be held in the future. Plans tentatively call for an all-star team to play the league-leading Vets. The committee will also select the most valuable players and league all-star team at the end of the season. Selections will be equally based on skill, team play, and sportsmanship.

side of the roof and one side of the structure. It is estimated at $800. Loss by fire is estimated at nearly $5,000 at a house near Janney. The blaze, occurring last evening at about 8:15 o'clock, is believed to be due to sparks from a pile of rubbish which was being burned nearby.

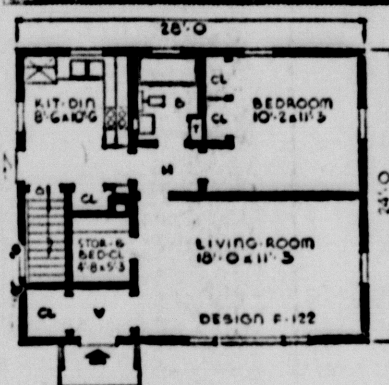

The house is owned by Roy Scott, of Roosevelt Boulevard, Philadelphia, and is unoccupied at present. Although the property contained no furniture at the time of the fire, there were pieces of plumbing and heating equipment therein, as the place is being remodelled.

The building is 2½ stories in height, and of stone construction, with wood shingle roof. The roof was destroyed, and some damage caused to other portions of the upper structure.

Firemen used booster lines. The house is located between the super highway and the old Lincoln highway.

Fire companies responding were Parkland, Hulmeville, Langhorne and Newportville.

As Newportville Fire Company was returning from this blaze, it was summoned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Connor, Main street, Hulmeville, where a "leak" had occurred in an electric refrigerator.

Another high-light of the evening was the exhibition given by the host group (Soby Cadets) color guard.

Each corps was required to remain on the field at least nine minutes, with a time limit of 10 minutes. The judging was based on music, appearance, effect, cadence, drill maneuvers, with neatness a prerequisite. The judges were appointed by the National Association of Junior Drum and Bugle Corps.

The corps converged on the borough during the early evening in buses. Most of them travelled by chartered vehicles, but Bracken Post, Bristol, rode in its own bus.

Money to finance the affair was raised by printed programs, financial donations and sale of refreshments. Many business men aided by donating trucks, chairs, etc.

The Cadet Corps committee of Soby Post is made up of: Peter Kutger, treasurer; Stafford Caldwell, William Ott, and Francis Raisener, quartermasters.
